ABOUT THE MORE LIFE COMPANY CORP.

The More Life Company Corp. is a life sciences company focused on commercializing proprietary and licensed technologies for agriculture and human health. The technologies are designed to support crop productivity and resilience and to improve the formulation, stability and delivery of selected active ingredients.

In agriculture, the Company is advancing Agrarius™, a licensed biological plant-signaling technology designed to support crop yield, resilience and more efficient use of agricultural inputs.

In human health, the Company is advancing its patented Quicksome™ oral formulation and delivery technology. Quicksome™ uses proprietary formulations and stabilizing molecules to encapsulate active ingredients into product formats designed to improve their delivery, stability and performance. The Company is pursuing applications across nutraceutical, pharmaceutical and compounding markets.

The Company's patented Quicksol™ technology is designed to improve the solubility of macrocyclic lactones and support their potential use across a range of human and animal health applications.

Through its technologies, commercial relationships and scientific development programs, The More Life Company is working to translate biological innovation into measurable real-world performance.
